How can my company collaborate with Akontec?

To collaborate with Akontec, you can typically start by contacting their sales or partnership team through their website or provided contact information. They will guide you through the onboarding process and project selection.

Start by researching Akontec's official website and gathering information about their services, client base, and the types of BPO projects offered.

Use the contact information provided on their website to get in touch with their sales or partnership team. Send an initial inquiry expressing your interest in collaborating with AKONTEC. Provide information about your BPO company, including your capabilities, experience, and any relevant certifications or industry expertise.

Expect a discussion with Akontec's representatives to further qualify your BPO company as a potential partner. They may ask about your infrastructure, team size, past performance, and technical capabilities.

If your BPO company meets Akontec BPO's criteria, you will likely receive partnership agreement documents. Carefully review these documents to understand the terms, responsibilities, and expectations.

Be prepared for due diligence checks, which may include background checks, financial assessments, and compliance with data security standards. Akontec BPO may also ask for references from previous clients or partners.

If you're approved as a partner, you may receive training and guidance on specific projects, tools, and processes. This helps ensure a smooth integration into their project workflows.

Once you're onboarded, Akontec will allocate BPO projects based on your capabilities, expertise, and capacity. The types of projects assigned may align with your strengths and specialization.

ARKANE

At Akontec, we believe in creating win-win opportunities. Our unique business model is centered around offering projects to highly skilled service providers and connecting them with clients seeking their expertise. What sets us apart is our commitment to sharing the rewards of success.

As the project progresses and service providers bill the clients, Akontec earns a royalty return of 15% on the total billing amount.

We identify high-value projects from a diverse range of industries, such as IT, marketing, finance, and more.

We match these projects with experienced service providers from our extensive network, selecting partners based on their expertise, capabilities, and track record.

We introduce clients to the selected service providers, facilitating seamless communication and collaboration throughout the project.

We believe in transparency and trust. Our clients and service providers can be assured that our interests are aligned with theirs, promoting a strong sense of partnership.

Our network of service providers comprises industry experts with a proven track record. This means clients can access top-tier talent for their projects.

Our unique model offers clients the opportunity to offset project costs with our royalty return structure, making it a financially savvy choice.

As our clients and service providers succeed, so do we. This creates a powerful incentive to deliver excellence and drive growth.
